BEULAH THOMAS CHANGES HER STORY

After Argument is Commenced Asks to Correct Her Story-Says Blair Assaulted Her and Kept Her Under Hypnotic Spell.

YORK, Neb., Jan. 22.—(Special Telegram.) —In the celebrated John Blair case the jury brought in a verdict this morning finding Blair guilty of criminal assault on the person of Bosiah Thomas, a minor, Blair's attorneys have made motion for a new trial. The sentence Judge Evans pronounces will, it is believed, be the shortest time, which is three years in the peniten-

There is considerable sympathy for Blair's family, which consists of a wife, who is frail and has stood by him throughout this trial, and three young children. Blair has an equity in a small farm near Arborville and is reported not to be in the best cir-

The sensational testimony in the trial was given today by Miss Thomas, wherein she testified entirely different than she did Monday this week, when she testified to shield John Blair. The testimony last night was all in and the attorneys had someoneed to make their pieces to the fury when Miss Thomas telephoned Judge truth she wished to change her testimony and correct testimony already given, Judge Evans at once gave his consent and this morning Miss Thomas was put on the witness stand and told that she had been under the hypnotic influence of John Blair and that when she was in his presence she was not strictly accountable for all that she did or said, admitting that he had greater influence over her than any other person and that she could not prevent herself at times from being completely within his power.

says she Was Hypnotised.

When questioned why she now testified different and what caused her to telephone Judge Evans asking for the privilege of testifying again she replied that Sheriff Brott had told her that attorneys for Mr. Blair had severely arraigned and denounced her father and mether and that she'then realised the unenviable position in which she was placing her parents and this was the reason why she requested the judge to allow her to testify again, She told the same story as she told when on the witness stand in County Judge Taylor's court at the preliminary trial, going into particulars, giving the same dates and time hypnotized and powerless to resist him.

County Judge Taylor said that when she was sworn in his court Miss Thomas had made the request that she would be seated so that she could not see John Blair, because when he caught her eye the spell A. Langford, jr., carrier on rural route No. the view of Blair.

Reed Loses Out Again.

John Reed gets nothing from his two ap that there will be much building here the peals to the supreme court from Douglas Thomas Peck of Garfield County county. Reed began a sult some years ago against his wife for divorce, alleging adultery and asking that the title to the property in her possession be transferred to him as the real owner. His wife filed counter charges of infidelity and claimed the property was bought with her own The court denied a divorce to money. either party and refused to pass on the property question. Reed appealed, but the case was reversed, the lower court's denial of a divorce being upheld, but it was ordered to inquire into the property matter. On retrial Reed threshed over the old questions, and was again denied a divorce, the court holding in a separate case that the property belonged to the wife. Reed again appealed, but the decision is affirmed in each case. The court says the lower court was right when it held that an action to determine property rights not growing out of the marriage relation could

The spectacular failure of Spooner R. once a western lumber king, is recalled in the decision of Grandin against the First National Bank of Chicago, an appeal from Douglas county. In 1891 Howell scame involved for $1,500,000. He owed the cancelled $150,660 of the notes it held by finally reached a determination.

The supreme court holds that while Howell's intentions to defraud his creditors were made clear by the evidence, there is nothing to connect the bank with the fraud and it acted within its legal rights.

Sent Back for Retrial.

A curiously complicated case is that of for the defendant, Mr. Hays. Mary J. Sharp against the Citizens bank of Stanton, which the court sends back for W. T. Sharp was county treasarer of Stanton from 1886 to 1890, and after he went out of office his books disclosed a shortage of between $2,000 and $3,000, which was afterward compromised for $1.200. In and administration was had upon his estate. Claims amounting to $4,000 were filed. out as it was insolvent, these were never

Nine years later his family discovered that there was a balance in the bank to his credit of $968.10, the existence of which was unknown to them. with Sharp, and his general creditors joined statute of limitations and refused to pay the money to anybody. The district court gave judgment for the sureties on the official bond and cut out all of the others.

The supreme court says that the bank's claim of the statute of limitations is not good, that this statute does not begin to run until demand is made for payment by the depositor or his assignee; that as between the bank and a depositor there is no promise to pay until demand is made. It holds that the family cannot recover because before they can sue in their in dividual capacity they must show that the estate has been administered and the debts all paid. It holds against the sureties on the bond because the evidence did not show they had paid after the shortage had been accertained. It finds that claims filed against am estate do not become dormant within five years because there is no method of securing execution in an attempt to collect.

FATHER TRIES TO KILL SON

Must Serve Two Years in Penitentiary.

BURWELL, Neb., Jan. 22.-(Special.)-Thomas J. L. Peck, an old resident of Garfield county, was taken to the penitentiary at Lincoln yesterday, to serve a two years sentence for attempting to murder his son William. Peck was tried and convicted at the October term of district court, but has been out since on bond pending the decision of the court on his motion for a new trial The case was argued to the court all day yesterday, the court overruling the motion and sentenced him for two years. The crime for which he is punished oc curred last June. It was disclosed by the evidence that there has been trouble in the family for years and that the father had attempted to keep the son from traveling a certain road, and on the day of the trouble went out with his revolver to stop the not be joined in a divorce case, and that a hoy. A fight ensued, in which wrenches and clubs were used, and finally the boy started to run and the father shot him in the back, inflicting a serious but not fatal wound. There seems to be but little sympathy for the convicted man, but many think the boy ought to go also.
